Up Through the Common
Rev. Diana Jordan Allende
Potluck

As a liberal faith tradition with broad concerns and myriad spiritual paths, Unitarian Universalism would seem to be an ideal religion for the 21st century. And yet many of our widely shared sensibilities are captured in the words of 19th century Unitarian, William Henry Channing (Reading No. 484). Popularly called "My Symphony," this statement of intent ends with the words, "To let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious, grow up through the common." Many of us yearn for an organic, natural spirituality, one that grows up through the commonplace and the everyday. What might that look like, and how might we practice?

On Becoming an Illegal American:
Solidarity with Unauthorized Immigrants
Anton Flores,
Co-Founder of Alterna

Alterna is a bilingual community located in LaGrange, GA that seeks to follow in the prophetic tradition by evoking and nurturing an alternative vision to the dominant culture around us, especially in its acts and attitudes towards newcomers without legal authorization. Alterna has developed a transitional housing program; expanded its cooperative housing; advocated for reform in local, state and national policies; monitored local courts; and organized local immigrants to stand against unjust policies and laws. Anton has spoken before at AUUF, and we especially welcome him back on this King Weekend to inform and challenge us about the work of Alterna.

Diet for a Small—and Changing—
Planet
The AUUF Greenies

Join us for a discussion of how world and local food supplies are being affected by climate change; and ways our eating and food-buying choices can not only provide greater dining gusto, but also help keep climate change in check.
